During your appointment, an attorney will review the questionnaire with you and answer your questions. Your estate plan is only as good as the information upon which it is based. This summary is designed to help you list ALL the property that you own, how it is titled, and what it is worth. If you own more property than can be listed on this checklist, please either use an extra sheet to list additional property or summarize the total worth in the space provided. In lieu of this checklist, you may also submit a detailed financial statement.

The information is essential for framing the issues that might be discussed at the initial meeting. However, should you decide to retain the Law Office of Terry Douglas to prepare your estate planning documents, you will be tasked to provide more particular information about your assets, including such things as the location of your accounts, account numbers, and specific beneficiary designations.

It can be a tedious process to gather and organize all of this information, but this is just a part of what your heirs will need to know to handle your estate. If it is a challenge for you, then you can imagine how difficult it would be for your heirs without your assistance. Your attention to the details will be appreciated by them – and this office.
